UNSETTLED CONDITION

Senate Has No Prearranged Program at Present.

HAWAII MAY BE NOTICED.

Senator Pettigrew Will Speak Against the Treaty, Contending That the Dole Government Is Absolutely Illegal.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The senate proceedings for the week opened with a speech by Senator Pettigrew dealing with the Hawaiian question. Beyond this speech it is very difficult to forecast the outlook for the week.

The diversion occasioned by taking up the Teller bond resolution has left the senate in a somewhat disorganized and unsettled condition and with no prearranged program.

The army and the legislative appropriation bills are already on the calendar, and the consideration of the agricultural bill has been completed by the committee.

The probabilities are that the army bill will be the first of these measures to receive consideration, though there is some disposition to displace it with the legislative bill.

Senator Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, said that it was his purpose to have the appropriation bills considered in advance of other measures, and if he adheres to this determination the week may be largely taken up with them.

The census bill also will be pressed for consideration during the week, and Senator Carter, chairman of the census committee, said that he was very hopeful of securing its passage in the near future.

The debate upon the civil service bill will be resumed when this bill is taken up, and the bill will be so amended as to give the control of the census bureau to the secretary of the interior.

The bimetallic Republican senators are still discussing the advisability of renewing the financial agitation in the senate by the introduction of some measure of their own. If they present a resolution it probably will be a declaration to the effect that the United States is not committed to the gold standard.

Speedy Action Desired.

The resolution reported from the senate committee on privileges and elections declaring Mr. Corbett not to be entitled to a seat in the senate from Oregon is also on the senate calendar, and there is a disposition in some quarters to dispose of this as speedily as possible.

There is a growing impression that the friends of the Hawaiian treaty feel that their safest course is in delay, and that this is the explanation of the tactics so far observed with reference to it.

They have made a very thorough canvass of the senate and have not been able to discover where they can get more than 58 votes, whereas to ratify the treaty they will have to have 60. They feel that even some of those 58 are not entirely reliable.

Senator Pettigrew's determination to discuss the Hawaiian question in open session will have a tendency to take the direction of the ratification resolution out of the hands of the foreign relations committee, and it may prove to be the opening wedge to the discussion of the whole subject in open session of the senate.

The resolution declares it to be contrary to the traditions of this country to acquire any territory so situated as to require a navy to protect it. This is a basis broad enough for the discussion of the whole subject, and it is understood to be Mr. Pettigrew's intention to enter very fully into the question of the condition of affairs in Hawaii.

He will deal with Mr. Dole's visit, and will undertake to show that that gentleman was never elected president, that the constitution of the present government of Hawaii was never submitted to the people of that country, and that in fact the whole government is irregular.

It is possible that objection may be made to discussing such subjects in open session in view of the pendency of the treaty, and Mr. Pettigrew not be allowed to proceed except behind closed doors.

House Forecast.

Washington, Jan. 31.—It is the intention of the house leaders to offset as far as possible the action of the senate in passing the Teller resolution by killing that declaration of the sense of congress regarding the payment of the government's coin bonds in silver on a ye and nay vote in the house this week.

While the full Republican strength in the house can not be commanded against the resolution, no doubt is expressed by those who have made it their business to canvass the situation that the majority against it will be decisive.

As soon as the resolution is reported back from the ways and means committee the rules committee will bring in a special order for its consideration. The time allowed for debate is likely to be brief, as the leaders do not believe there is any necessity for protracted debate, and, moreover, a long discussion would measurably decrease the very purpose they have in view—namely, a prompt and decisive negative reply to the senate's declaration.

The remainder of the week will be devoted to appropriation bills. The District of Columbia bill is still under discussion, and the fortifications bill is on the calendar. The house leaders intend to give appropriation bills the right of way in order to make an early adjournment possible.

The moment the appropriation bills are out of the way the new rules will be brought in, and after that the contested election cases and the bankruptcy bill will be brought forward.

AIRSHIP IS A REALITY.

At Least Professor Dalton Has So Declared.

HE IS THE INVENTOR OF IT

On March 1 He Says He Will Sail From Muncie, Ind., and Settle Down Under the President's Window.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 31.—An aeronaut named Clarence Baldwin announces that he has successfully contrived, after years of work, an airship that will actually sail and navigate the atmosphere, at Dalton, and that he will make his first public trial trip, starting from this city, March 1.

The ship is made of sheet and tubular aluminum throughout, and is a shell 80 feet long, 28 feet in diameter through the center. The sheet covering is one-sixty-fourth of an inch in thickness.

The buoyancy is obtained by gas filling this shell. The motive power is a gas engine connecting with a propeller and rudder at the stern of the shell. Three wings on the side assist in the locomotion of the ship, and are arranged to strike the wind like a knife, so that there will be no resistance.

Professor Baldwin says his ship is a reality, and not a myth, and that when he gives the word "Let her go" in this city on March 1 his aerial vessel will accomplish a speed of not less than 80 miles an hour.

He contemplates a trip first southeast to Washington, the capital of the United States, and says that Mr. McKinley will be the first president of the United States who will have the honor of sitting in the White House, looking out a window and seeing an airship.

SENATOR TELLER's silver resolution was adopted by the Senate by a big majority Friday. Some of the strongest speeches of the week on the subject were made the closing day of the debate. Senator Stewart, of Nevada, opened the discussion in support of the resolution. He maintained that money, whether it be silver or gold or paper, was a creature of the law, the creation of money being inherent in all independent nations. Mr. Stewart said, referring to the speeches of President McKinley in New York, that he regretted to see that the President had not studied this question more deeply and that he was utterly misguided. He quoted the following sentence from the President's speech: "Nothing should tempt us—nothing ever will tempt us—to scale down the sacred debt of the nation through a legal technicality. Whatever many be the language of the contract, the United States will discharge all its obligations in currency, recognized as the best throughout the civilized world, at the time of payment."

Mr. Stewart said he thought this was a remarkable statement which meant simply that nothing but gold was good enough for bondholders.

Mr. McKinley, said Mr. Stewart, refers to the option of the Government to pay its obligations in either gold or silver as a mere technicality and he did this, too, in the face of his own vote in favor of the resolution we are considering. Now the President calls this option of the Government—worth a thousand millions—a mere technicality. "What language for a President to use!" exclaimed Mr. Stewart. "We cannot use this money in the treasury unless it is recognized by other nations of the world as the best money. The despots and gold syndicates of Europe are to name the kind of money regardless of what the law of the United States must be." Referring to Secretary Gage, Mr. Stewart said he believed the Secretary to be an honest man—a man who would not rob a bank—but he said it was difficult for Mr. Gage to look at this question except from the standpoint of a banker. He thought it unfortunate that the President had placed the Treasury Department in charge of bankers; but he was glad the President had thrown off the cloak and made the issue directly with the people.

Judging from the large majority in favor of the resolution it doesn't look very much like the silver question is dead.

English as She Wrote.

A Jersey City druggist is making a collection of the queer orders he receives from people who send children to the store for things they need. Here are a few samples of them:

"This child is my little girl. I sent you five cents to buy two sitless powders for a groan up adult who is sick."

Another reads:

"Dear Tochter, ples gif barer five sense worse of Auntie Toxyn for to gargle babi's throat and oblesage."

An anxious mother writes:

"You will please give the little boy five cent worth of epeac to throw up in a five month's old babe. N. B.—The babe has a sore stummick."

"I have a cute pain in my child's diagram. Please give me son something to release it."

Another anxious mother wrote:

"My little baby has eat up its father's parish plaster. Send an antedote quick as possible by the enclosed little girl."

The writer of this one was evidently in pain:

"I haf a hot time in my insides and wich I wood like to be extinguished. What is good for to extinguish it? The enclosed quarter is for the price of the extinguisher. Hurry pleas."—New York Sun.

New York, Jan. 31.—A. G. Spalding, the former president of the Chicago baseball club, was asked on his arrival here from Chicago for confirmation or denial of the rumor that Adrian C. Anson was to be dropped from the management of the Chicago team. Mr. Spalding said: "It is a delicate subject for me to talk about, for I have a sentimental feeling for Anson, as we once played ball together. I have taken pains as a mediator to find out from Chicagoans how they feel about a change of management. There is a decided undercurrent in favor of this latter. Lovers of baseball think that Anson has been in power too long."

FRED GILBERT, Sam Peterson and Joe Maze were given a hearing before Judge Wadsworth Saturday afternoon, and were held in sum of $250 each to answer a charge of assault and battery. They were in the free-for-all fight on Wall street Thursday.

FIRE INSURANCE.—Pickett & Respass, successors to Duley & Baldwin.

BIG BLAZE.

Maysville Visited By One of the Worst Fires in the History of the City.

Parker & Smoot's Livery Stable and the Opera House in Ruins.

OWNERS AND TENANTS BIG LOSERS.

The M. E. Church, South, Badly Damaged and Other Buildings Have Narrow Escapes.

Twenty-Nine Horses and One Cow Roasted to Death in the Flames.

The Loss Will Reach Over $50,000, While the Insurance Amounts to Only About $20,000.

Maysville was visited by one of the most destructive fires in the history of the city at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. It is doubtful if flames ever did their work more swiftly and more completely.

The blaze was discovered about 5 o'clock, and half an hour later Parker & Smoot's livery stable, corner of Second and Sutton streets, and Washington Opera House were in ruins.

Twenty-eight horses and one cow perished in the flames, and another horse was so badly burned the poor beast was killed to end its sufferings.

At twenty minutes to 5 a. m., Mr. Geo. Griffin, the embalmer and undertaker with McIlvain & Humphreys, returned from a professional trip to the country. He awoke one of the stable employes and driving in, then went to his room half a square distant. He had been in bed about ten minutes when the alarm was given. By the time he dressed and reached the corner the stable was a seething mass of flames.

The fire started in the small room occupied by Mr. Frank Landgraf as a tailor shop, in the southeast corner of the stable building. Its origin is a mystery, but a defective flue or a cigar stub thrown on the floor the night before, no doubt started the blaze.

Behold how great a fire a little spark kindleth.

When Dr. Yazell, who lives opposite the stable, on Sutton, first saw the blaze, the fire was still confined to the tailor shop. He ran out in his barefeet to give the alarm.

The stable with loft filled with hay has long been recognized as a veritable fire trap, and the flames, fanned by a light wind from the South, swept through the building like a tinder-box. One can get some idea of the rapidity with which the fire spread when it is stated that in less than ten minutes after Dr. Yazell first saw it, the stable was a roaring furnace.

The south end of the stable extends close up to the rear of the opera house. This portion of the opera house was a frame, iron clad. It was soon in flames, and the work of destruction went swiftly on.

The fire companies had been slow to respond. The gates to the hose-carriage room at the opera house were locked, and it was fully ten or fifteen minutes before a key was found. The Neptunes were first on the ground, but five or six men and boys had tugged away to drag the hose carriages to the scene. It was slow work for these few, and much valuable time was lost. It was nearly half an hour after the alarm was first sounded by the Amazon bell in the Fifth ward before that company got started with their hose carriages. Most everybody ran to the fire instead of lending a helping hand to get the hose to the scene. The Amazons finally got started, and tied on to an electric car that came along as they reached corner of Second and Lexington. The need of an up-to-date fire department was never more forcibly impressed upon property owners.

When the Neptunes reached the scene the stable was practically in ruins, and the opera house was doomed.

It was only by the hardest work that buildings west of the opera house and those on the north side of Second were saved. The Maysville Carriage Company's building, Dr. Smith's dental office, Mr. E. A. Robinson's residence opposite Dr. Smith's, Mr. Charles Bland's residence on Wall, south of Second, and others caught from sparks, but the people were on watch and in most instances the blazes were extinguished before they gained any headway. The carriage building was damaged considerably.

The Public Library just south of the stable also had a narrow escape. The Librarian, Mr. Hixson, closed all the shutters next the stable but one, and this no doubt saved the building and the valuable collection of books and curios. As it was the building was damaged considerably.

Shortly before 10 o'clock, three or four hours after the first fire, smoke was seen issuing from the roof of the handsome new M. E. Church, South, a few doors west of the opera house. Sparks from the first fire had been carried into the ventilator shaft of the church, and started a blaze that got in between the slate roof and the ceiling. In extinguishing this fire the church was flooded with the muddy water, and the damages to the carpet, pews, walls, ceiling and roof is placed at between $2,000 and $3,000.

It was very fortunate for that part of the city that a strong wind was not blowing. Had there been a stiff breeze, there is no telling where the fire would have ended.

As it was, big pieces of burning wood were scattered over that part of the city as far down as the C. and O. depot.

Dr. Smith's dental office was flooded by the bursting of a hose. His damage is fully covered by insurance in the Palatine, W. E. Newell agent.

One horse and the office safe are all that Parker & Smoot saved.

NOTES.

The "Little Red," probably the oldest fire engine in the country, was saved.

The veteran fireman C. W. McClanahan exerted himself to save the opera house, but it was doomed.

President M. C. Russell, of the Washington Fire Company, and his three sons worked like Trojans.

There will be an effort made, probably to-day, to get the bell out of the ruins and placed in position for use at a place yet to be selected.

Part of the east wall of the opera house fell late Sunday afternoon, and this morning just before 10 o'clock the remaining walls tumbled with a crash.

The "Niagara," the large fire engine used by the Washington Fire Company for years, was burned and is a total wreck. The boys tried hard to get it out, but did not succeed.

About fifty plate glass windows on north side of Second were broken by the heat. The cornice of the Zweigart Building, the Heiser building and others was badly damaged also by the heat.

Mayor Stalleup ordered ropes stretched across Second street to keep pedestrians and vehicles from passing in front of the opera house and police were stationed at each rope as an additional precaution.

The members of the Washington Fire Company made strenuous efforts to save their play house but to no avail. With all their efforts they were forced to look on with heavy hearts and see the large theatre go up in smoke.

The officers and members of Washington Fire Company desire to return thanks to Landlord H. B. Daugherty, of the Central Hotel, for his thoughtfulness and generosity in supplying the firemen with hot coffee, and to C. D. Russell, the chinaman, who furnished tin cups and superintended the distribution of the beverage to the fire laddies who were cold and wet to the skin.

The fire recalls to the mind of many of our old citizens the conflagration that destroyed what was known as the "Culbertson row" in 1849, on the site where the livery stable and opera house stood. The fire originated in a barber shop and bath room kept by a colored man by the name of Miles. The buildings destroyed were all frame except the Presbyterian Church which was a two-story brick and stood where the opera house stood. That fire burned from the present Historical Society building to Second street. In those days we had no waterworks to fight fires, but had "break-down" engines, "Relief," "Phoenix" and the "Neptune." The people formed a row from the fire to the river, men on one side and women on the other. The women passed the empty buckets to the river and the men the full buckets to the fire.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundersman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at J. James Wood's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

THE HENDRICK CASE.

The Ex-Attorney General Says He Retained the Money on Advice of His Counsel.

Mention was made Saturday of the action of Judge Cantrell at Frankfort Friday suspending ex-Attorney General Hendrick from further practice as an attorney in Judge Cantrell's court. As previously stated a rule was issued against Gen. Hendrick on motion of W. H. Posey, Master Commissioner, Thursday, requiring him to pay into court $1,325.34, which the court claimed Gen. Hendrick had wrongfully withheld. Gen. Hendrick's response was not satisfactory, and the court at once suspended him.

Gen. Hendrick, when seen, said he had nothing to say, except what was in his response, which is in part as follows: "That he fails to pay the amount into court in obedience to said rule, because in his judgement the same constitutes a final order from which an appeal lies to the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, which he has prayed and continued to pray at every stage of this proceeding at which such a prayer would be proper."

He disclaims any effort to place himself in contempt of the orders of the court and personally expresses the profoundest respect for the court, its orders, jurisdiction, etc.

That he believes that his services in collecting over $60,000 for the State, which has already been paid in, is worth at least 30 per cent.

That he has upon advice of counsel retained $1,325.34 as fees in certain cases named, in which over $60,000 has been collected and over $1,000,000 has been paid to the State by the establishment of the principles through his services.

That he has executed a supersedeas bond, suspending the judgment and rule upon him and is willing to execute any other bond to make the plaintiff secure so that if he loses the case the money will be paid.

Respondent for further response said that he retains said sum of $1,325.34 upon the advice of his counsel, for the reason that the lien which he claims in this case, as an attorney and counselor at law, would be lost and his rights defeated, by allowing this sum of money to go out of his hands for any purpose whatever, and that as attorney of record in the case, he had the right to receive.

JOHN GREGG was arrested at Manchester Friday for attempting to intimidate Albert Moore, prosecuting witness in the election bribery case of C. E. Maier, of that place. Gregg is alleged to have told Moore that if he testified he would be sent to the penitentiary. Moore claims he offered him $5 to leave town. Mayor Spears assessed a fine of $15 and costs against Gregg.

THE Kentucky delegation in Congress voted to a man for the Methodist publishing house bill appropriating $288,000 that passed the House Friday evening. A delegation of Kentucky and Tennessee Representatives waited on the Senate Committee on Claims, after the bill passed the House, and were assured by Senator Teller, a great friend of the South, that the bill would pass the Senate by a two-thirds majority.

Her Dream Came True.

A few days ago Colonel Sam W. Stairs, editor of the Dover News, lost a valuable gold ring. The other night Mrs. Stairs dreamed she had found the ring, and the next morning she related the dream to Mr. Stairs and told him she was going to find his ring that day. When she made up the bed on the morning in which the Colonel had slept she discovered the lost treasure, and the beautiful band of old now adorns the hand of the jovial editor.

ARNOLD, the little son of Henry Keys of the West End, had a very narrow escape from instant death one day last week. While playing in the rear of Poyntz's distillery C. and O. train No. 3 struck him and knocked him down. Fortunately he received only slight bruises, but he had a close call.

R. B. WILSON has on his "novelty farm" near Lexington 3,000 quails. The birds are kept in a field of about two and a quarter acres, surrounded by a close wire fence eight feet high. He amputates the little fore joint from the wings of the old birds, which prevents them from flying away. They attempt to soar away, but can only rise to the height of about five feet, when they drop down, never getting over the fence. The young birds fly out of the inclosure, but they invariably come back home before night, to roost. He has boards sunk six inches in the ground beneath the wire fence on all sides of the area devoted to the birds to keep out predatory animals.

The Cincinnati Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company, in its circular for the week, has the following:

The offerings during the present week were quite large, and the market about as strong as we reported it in our last. There was some fluctuation in new stock, but the general average was probably not any lower, and the demand is certainly as good as ever. High averages were reached for crops and the results were nearly always satisfactory to shippers. With a continuation of the favorable weather for handling the new crop will be out of the hands of the farmers earlier than we have ever known it, and a considerable portion of the same will have gone directly in the manufacturers. Country dealers have been slow to pay the prices asked by the grower, and in consequence only light purchases are being held by them.

Old stock has advanced in prices during the present week, at least the best and low grades have done so, fine leaf selling up to 23½c, while in mediums there is not much change. Very close attention is given the sales by all the buyers, both speculators and manufacturers, and it is only seldom that a hoghead is neglected. In fact, the slight variation in the market in the forepart of the week was more the result of the dark and gloomy weather than anything else, and with bright sunshine and better light the last two days came some very spirited bidding.

Who does not know women and young girls who are continually in tears? Who always see the dark side? Who have frequent fits of melancholy without any apparent cause? The intelligent physician will know that it is some derangement of the complicated and delicate feminine organs. The young girl suffers, bodily and mentally, in silence. There is undue weariness, unexpected pain, unreasonable tears and fits of temper. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription exerts a wonderful power over woman's delicate organism. It is an invigorating tonic and is specific for the peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and painful derangements of women. Careless, easy-going doctors frequently treat their women patients for biliousness, nervousness, dyspepsia, liver or kidney troubles, when the real sickness is in the organs distinctly feminine, and no help can come till they are made perfectly strong by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

NOT INCORPORATED.

Insurance Companies in California Are Being Stirred Up.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—State Insurance Commissioner Clune has declared invalid and insufficient the bonds of all fire and marine insurance companies doing business in California and not incorporated under the laws of the state. This applied to domestic as well as foreign companies. As a result it is contended that none of the 82 companies affected by the order is now qualified to transact business.

Verdict Reversed.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 31.—The jury in the case in Federal court in which Mrs. George D. Stevens sued the Northwestern Mutual Insurance company for the amount of a policy upon her husband's life returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. This is the reverse of former verdict in the same court. George D. Stevens was a Crete banker, who disappeared six years ago. His wife believes him dead, but the insurance company maintains he is alive, and the jury concurred with the defendant.

Women Were Ignored.

Albany, Jan. 31.—Superintendent of Public Works Aldridge has decided on some changes in connection with the artistic work of the grand stairway in the capitol building. One of the features of the stairway is the carving of distinguished personages' heads in the caps of the columns. In all the artistic work the part which woman has taken in history has been overlooked, for the face of not one distinguished woman is present.

Had Seventeen Wives.

Williamsburg, Ky., Jan. 31.—John Johnson, alias Honeycut, alias Sanders, sentenced to the penitentiary for five years, glories in the fact that he has married 17 women. He would go into a community, announce that he was a preacher, and immediately set to work to win some fair damsel. This part of his plan it rarely took him over a week to accomplish. He would then marry her, and after remaining a few days would decamp.

Landed His Man.

Sulphur, Ky., Jan. 31.—Hon. Park C. Smith, state senator from this county, on entering his barn at his home near here, was shot at twice by a negro burglar, one shot passing through his hat and one taking effect in his left arm. Mr. Smith afterward succeeded in getting his own gun and arrested the man and landed him behind the bars of the county jail at Newcastle.

Attempted Assassination.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 31.—John C. Davis of this city, a section boss on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, was shot in the breast and seriously if not fatally wounded while standing on the railroad track. The would-be assassin disappeared and Davis was taken in charge by officials.

Toll House Blown Up.

Bardstown, Ky., Jan. 31.—Masked men destroyed the tollhouse near Nelson fair grounds with dynamite.

The Christian Church voted unanimously yesterday to call Rev. Howard T. Cree as pastor. He has had charge of the churches at Simpsonville and Elk Horn some time. Mr. Cree is a Kentuckian, and is one of the most eloquent young preachers in the State. He filled the pulpit here two weeks ago, and favorably impressed all who heard him.

A writer in the Scientific American says he has cleared his premises of vermin by making whitewash yellow with copperas and covering the stones and rafters with it. In every crevice in which a rat might go he put the copperas, and scattered it in the corners of the floor. The result was, complete disappearance of rats and mice. Since that time not a rat or a mouse has been seen near the house.

At Georgetown Rev. F. J. Donnelly, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, was badly injured by a Queen & Crescent train. He was returning from Cincinnati on the late train, and as the train neared the Georgetown depot, was standing in the vestibule of a coach talking with the conductor. Without thinking, he stepped from the car while it was still in motion, and was thrown underneath the wheels. One foot was badly crushed and several toes cut off. His shoulder was dislocated, and he received other serious injuries.

A SPECIAL from Frankfort says it develops that the Franklin grand jury is after the big distillers all over the State. The distillers in Kentucky are required by law to report the whisky in their warehouses on September 15th of each year to the Auditor of Public Accounts, and on the 1st of January, May and September, after the Government tax shall have been paid, become due or the whisky removed, every owner of proprietor of a bonded warehouse shall make a report to the State Auditor and the County Clerk of the county where the whisky is situated. There is an 8 per cent. penalty for failure to pay the taxes, and of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000 for failure to make the report.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired-out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centers in the stomach, gently stimulates the liver and kidneys and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c. or $1 per bottle at J. J. Spots on old Sol's face that make it look like that of Fitzsimmons after his bout with Corbett, has been attracting the attention of astronomers lately. We can knock spots out of anything in the way of fine linen, collars, shirt fronts, cuffs, etc., that you bring here. We defy the strongest telescope to find a spot on your linen after it leaves here. Our laundry work is perfect.
